Wednesday, May 13 Uganda Update

Just a quick update on what's going on in Uganda since the Monday email.

Dr. K arrived last night and we all had a good visit at the guest house. There are only 4 Americans here right now, but 17 more, all college students will arrive Friday night.

We spent most of today doing door to door evangelism and below are some photos taken during this time. They will give you some idea of the ministry here.

These two young men and the one young lady in the background responded to the gospel and we gave all three a Gideon New Testament. A retired Georgia judge is with us and he is a Gideon. The gentleman in the background is Pastor Francis Myanja of Kajjansi New Life Presbyterian Church. These three promised they would be in church on Sunday so we will see.

The next photograph is a wonderful view from the hills of Kajjansi. Lake Victoria is beyond the hills in the background of the photo. I plan to post this photo on my Uganda website in the future so you can see an enlargement of it.

Kajjansi is the first town after you leave Entebbe Airport on your way to Kampala.

This little boy was severly burned when he turned a kettle of boiling water over on himself a little over a week ago. Pastor Myanja has a car and he was called to rush the child to a hospital in Kampala. Those spots are not bandages, but his skin. He is being held by his uncle, who told us he was a Muslim when we came in to visit the family. Today he confessed his sin and need of Jesus. He too was given a Gideon New Testament.

Pastor Francis has just finished praying for the child when I took this picture. Tomorrow we will return to Kajjansi for more door to door evangelism.
