Subject: Uganda Update, Saturday, December 17

This will most likely be the last Update for this trip as after I return from the village of Kiyola tomorrow where I will teach Sunday school and preach, time will be short as I get ready to go to Entebbe Airport and fly out at 11:35. If all goes well, I should be home Monday night.

The Breland's fly out last night so they would get home tonight and he would be able to preach in the morning in his church in North Carolina. It was great to get to know them and share ministry with them. They are committed to being in Malawi next year with Bryan's dad so they are looking for a return to Uganda in 2013.

The young girl with Sickle Cell Anemia is now back in her village. She has been fully evaluated and a prescribed treatment has begun but doctors say it will take several months to see major improvement. Thanks to all who have been praying for her. Please continue.

Here are some more photos:

This is the unfinished sanctuary of Kiyola that is already too small for the group. It is being used as a classroom. The group now meets in a basement type room, the top of which can be seen in the bottom of this photo

This is the inside of the basement room, really it has a hill on one side and open air on all the rest. It is rather long and narrow so it was hard to get a good flash photo of the room

The Breland's brought some baby blankets and this Mom was very proud to get one for her child

We purchased mosquito nets to give away. This picture is of a sweet older lady making her way up front to get one

They are starting a primary school here in January and here the type uniforms the girls will wear are being shown. Over 70 children have signed up to attend

This is just a view down hill from the church facilities. It has rained almost every day since late September so everything is very green

It was good again to work with Pastor Edward Kasaija of First Pres Kampala, Dr Kefa Sempangi, and as always with Rashid

This is a new item Bob Sisson from Tennessee introduced me to. It is call a "D.Light" and is simply a plastic tube with small LED light and a solar panel on top. For just $16 each, we can put a light in a hut without buying candles or lamp oil. It is not a great amount of light, but compared to nothing, it is significant. Bob Sisson is working with Jay Trumbull to get a well drilling rig to Uganda
