

Tuesday, May 19 Uganda Update

We are presently in Kumi in Eastern Uganda. I first visited this area with Dr. K and Rod Mortenson in February of 1994. I have pass through the area once in the years since then, but without stopping. Our 1994 trip was to Ngora and it is here we are doing ministry.

This is our group riding in Rashid's new 30 passenger bus for his school. The gentleman on the left front is Ralph Hill, a retired judged from Georgia. He and his wife are working on beginning a second career with MTW in Scotland. This trip was from Kumi to Ngora.

If you look close at his photo you can see me with my arm on the shoulders of a gentleman sitting on a motor cycle (Boda Boda). We are doing personal evangelism this week in Ngora and this man belongs to a cult that believes that Jesus is not the correct name of the savior. Their group uses "Isa Maseeh" and claims any group that uses any other name is pagan. We spent over an hour with him but in the time we were talking with him, a large group gathered and listened to the debate and heard the gospel. Many Christians came up to the group and cheered us on. This photo was taken by Joshua Light, who is with PEF. He and I were team mates along with a Uganda pastor to interpret. Much of this debate however was in English. We will continue this ministry through Friday. Dr. K speaks in the mornings and we go out an evangelize in the afternoons.

You might call this a Ugandan fish market. These are smoked fish. I hope she sell them all today.

This is a picture from last Friday when I was at Ntenjeru Presbyterian Church. Joy Luswa teaches a ladies Bible class each week and additionally this day, they had a lesson on cooking vegetables to maintain their nutrient value.
